

India - Trinidad and Tobago Relations

The relationship between India and Trinidad and Tobago is warm and friendly and based on deep-rooted people-to-people ties. History of the relationship goes back to 30 May 1845, when the first ship 'Fatel Razack' carrying 225 Indian indentured workers reached the shores of Trinidad, then a British colony. Their numbers increased with subsequent arrival of more ships from India till 1917. The descendants of those indentured workers, now in their fifth or sixth generation, form nearly 42% of the total population, constituting an integral part of the economic, political and social fabric of the country. The presence of a substantial population of Indian origin (the largest ethnic group) has contributed immensely to close bilateral relations between the two countries. India and Trinidad and Tobago share warm and cordial relations. India was one of the first countries to establish diplomatic relations with Trinidad and Tobago following its independence from the UK on 31 August 1962. Since the establishment of diplomatic ties between the two countries, bilateral relations have witnessed continued momentum with engagement at different levels.
